Mr Kenneth Dyson

In 1979, Ken along with his brother Terry established Dyson Wools. What started out as a private wool merchant business quickly grew into a large wool marketing company in WA which sold wool privately, at auction and directly overseas.

He was Managing Director up to his retirement in 2005.

Ken was heavily involved with the Private Treaty Wool Merchants. He held the position of Chairman of the Western Australian Sector of the Private Treaty Wool Merchants of Australia and later the National body of the Private Treaty Wool Merchants.

He represented the Western Australian wool growers in the Australian Wool Corporation reserve price years and travelled to Canberra on many occasions representing WA.

He supported country footy through his business Dyson Wools.

Ken was and is always well respected in the wool industry sharing his knowledge and skills with others.
